From the London Papers, May 18.

Paris, March 7. Prince Edward, otherwise known under the title of Count of Albany, is not dead, as the letters from Rome, and the Mercure de France, had announced. This Pretender to the Throne of England, it is true, was at the last extremity, from a watery humour which had fallen in upon his breast; but those about him having the precaution to fire his legs, the dropsy vanished, and he received immediate relief.

This momentary cure, however, will not probably preserve him long. He is indebted for it, under the Almighty, to the M. S. Labre, of Florence, who was called in by the dying Prince.

Laurel and his Majesty's Speech to both Houses of Parliament was read at the Cockpit by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and is to the following purport:

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I feel the highest satisfaction in meeting you again in Parliament, after recurring to the sentiments of my people. The loyalty and attachment to the constitution which have appeared throughout all parts of the kingdom, have afforded me the greatest pleasure. Such sentiments will, no doubt, influence your conduct, and produce a proper moderation in all your procedure.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

"I have ordered the proper estimates to be laid before you. I lament that I am still under the necessity of demanding such supplies as may encrease the burthens of my people. But I trust that the exigencies of the nation, at the conclusion of a long and expensive war, will shew the necessity of such requisitions.

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The frauds daily committed in the public revenue, merit your most serious attention; and I hope such measures will be adopted, as you in your wisdom may see proper for correcting them. The commercial concerns of the country, are subjects of the most serious consideration. The affairs of India, as connected with this kingdom in particular, call for reform; and I trust, that your deliberations and procedure on this point will be regulated by a respect to the nature and interests of our invaluable constitution. I have no object in view, but the welfare of my people, and the preservation of those rights which are equally connected with the interests of my Crown and the happiness of my kingdom."

The attendance at the Cock-pit last night was by no means numerous. There was not above eighty Members of the House of Commons present.

In the House of Peers, as soon as their Lordships were unrobed, the Lord Chancellor took the oaths. The certificate of the names of the Sixteen Peers, was delivered in by the proper officers, after which, all the Lords present took the oaths, and the business of the day concluded with the introduction of new Peers.

In the House of Commons the members present were sworn, and the election of their Speaker closed the day.

The Chair of the Commons is settled; and Ministers do not mean to interrupt the re-election of Mr Cornwall. He was last night at the Cockpit.

The House of Peers will vote an address to his Majesty's speech to-morrow, and go up with it on Thursday. The House of Commons, on the other hand, will not be able to take the said speech into consideration before Friday next at the soonest.

The first five or six days being spent in the necessary forms of a new Parliament, swearing in members, &c. there will follow, without any further delay, the urgent business of finance.

The Minister's levee yesterday was one of the best attended ever remembered since the days of Mr Pelham.

Mr Pitt is said to have in contemplation a bill to retrench the enormous perquisites of office clerks.

Yesterday afternoon, at three o'clock, the poll finally closed for electing two representatives of the City of Westminster, when, on calling up the books, the numbers appeared,

For Lord Hood	6694
Right Hon. C. J. Fox	6234
Sir Cecil Wray	5998

Majority for Mr Fox 236

After the numbers were declared, a requisition was delivered to the High-Bailiff, as follows:

"To Thomas Corbett, Esq; High-Bailiff of the City and Liberty of Westminster.

"I, Sir Cecil Wray, Bart. one of the candidates to serve in Parliament for the City and Liberty of Westminster, do hereby demand of you a scrutiny of the votes taken at the present election of two citizens to serve in Parliament for the said City and Liberty, as witness our hands this 17th of May, 1784.

"Mountmorres, R. Butler, J. Meyer, D. Mackenzie, James Croft, Mauris Marlaul, John Robertson,	"CECIL WRAY, Batemen, Francis Atkinson, William Adams, Peter Paul, John Jackson, Rev. John Lloyd."
---	--

Lord Mahon and several other members of Parliament have not signed it, because we hear a petition will also be presented to Parliament, if that mode of proceeding should be deemed more eligible, and those Gentlemen who have signed it are prevented from being on the Committee.

An adjournment was made from the Hustings to the Vestry, when, after much altercation between the parties, the High Bailiff decided that no return should be made till the 28th instant, and consented to the scrutiny taking place as desired, against which Mr Fox's friends entered a protest.

Mr Fox was then chaired in the following order:

Six Gentlemen on horseback.
Twenty-four Marrow-bones and Cleavers.
The Arms of Westminster.
Thirty Firemen of Westminster.
Martial Music.

Committees of the Seven Parishes, with white wands, following their respective Banners, and attended by numberless Gentlemen of the several districts.

Gentlemen's Servants on horseback closing the procession, two and two, &c. &c.

The route of the procession was round Covent Garden, down Ruffel and Catherine-streets into the Strand, Charing-

Cross, Parliament-street, round the end of Great George-street, and back to Charing-Cross, Pall-Mall, &c. St James's-street, Piccadilly, Berkley-street, round Berkley-square, back through Berkley-street, and into Devonshire-house Court-yard, where the various banners formed in front, while Mr Fox, alighting from his chair, ascended the steps, and joined the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchesses of Devonshire, Lady Duncannon, &c. &c. Mr Fox from thence addressed his friends, most cordially thanking them for the high honour they had conferred upon him, and requesting, as their triumph in the cause of freedom and independence had been so highly honourable to him and themselves, it might not be sullied by the smallest marks of tumult or intemperance. This speech was received with repeated acclamations, after which the company retired to Willis's rooms, where near 1500 persons sat down to dinner, and closed the day with mirth and festivity. In the evening the principal streets were illuminated.

The commencement of the scrutiny for Westminster is fixed for Friday the 28th instant, in the Vestry-room of St Ann's, Soho.

The Westminster writ will make one of the first topics to be agitated in the Commons.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was not at Carlton-House yesterday, as reported, when Mr Fox's procession stopped there; but had left it about half an hour before, to visit the Duke of Devonshire.

Yesterday morning, at half after nine o'clock, the Sheriffs of Middlesex met at the Guildhall, Westminster, and the successful candidates, Mr Wilkes, Mr Maiowaring, and their Counsel, Scrutineers and Friends likewise attended, when those Gentlemen were duly elected. The return was immediately signed by Lord Townshend, with between twenty and thirty other respectable Freeholders, and the Court was then dissolved. Not above forty Freeholders attended this last stage of the business.

WIND AT DEAL, May 17. N. E.

EDINBURGH.

Extract of a letter from London, May 18.

"This day his Majesty went to the House of Peers to constitute the new Parliament. He will again meet them to-morrow, when the Speaker will be presented to him for his approbation. Then he will address both Houses of Parliament; and when his Majesty retires, an answer to the address will be moved for, and no doubt carried in the House of Peers.

"Eleven new Peers were this day sworn in, and took their seats among the rest of the Lords.

"In the House of Commons, Mr Cornwall was re-elected Speaker without opposition.

"The Marquis of Graham moved for that measure, and prefaced his motion with a very handsome eulogium on Mr Cornwall's impartiality, and knowledge of Parliamentary history.

"Sir George Howard seconded the motion in the same strain with the Marquis of Graham.

"The conjectures concerning the effects of the scrutiny for Westminster, are, as you may imagine, various; the friends of either party prognosticating nothing but good.

"This is a day of suspense and expectation. It is to-morrow that the first glimpse will appear of the complexion of the new Parliament. A very great number of members are already in town.

"I heard it this day affirmed, that if Mr Fox's ministry had continued, something analogous to the episcopacy of England, as far as odds of livings is concerned, was to have been established in Scotland—several appointments in different parts of the country of about five hundred a-year. My authority is a member of Parliament of Mr Fox's party."

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, the Right Hon. David Earl of Leven, his Majesty's High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, accompanied by a number of Noblemen and Gentlemen of distinction, walked in procession from his lodgings, opposite the City-guard, to the High Church, where he was received by the Magistrates in their robes; the city-guard, and some companies of the 9th regiment, lining the streets. After hearing an excellent sermon by the Rev. Dr Grievie, minister at Dalkeith, Moderator to the last General Assembly, from Psal. cxxxvii. 5, 6. "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy,"—his Grace repaired to the aisle, where, having taken his seat, the Assembly proceeded to the election of a Moderator.

The candidates were, the Rev. Dr Drysdale of Edinburgh and the Rev. Dr McFarlane of Canongate. Dr Drysdale was chosen by a great majority. A protest was entered against the election as improper, Dr Drysdale being one of the principal clerks of Assembly. Dr Wishart requested of the Assembly to be pleased to appoint a person to assist him in the execution of the office of Clerk to the Assembly, in room of Dr Drysdale, chosen Moderator, and to officiate in case of ab-through indisposition. In compliance with which rethe Assembly unanimously appointed Dr Macknight, one the ministers of Edinburgh, as Assistant Clerk during all the

of this Assembly, and the Commissions thereof, and au-
of him accordingly; whereupon the oath de fidei adm- was administered to him. His Grace having prehis Majesty's commission, appointing him to represent his in the Assembly, also his Majesty's letter and warrant for Royal bounty of 1000*l.* the same were read, and ordered to recorded. His Grace then delivered an elegant speech to Assembly from the throne, to which a suitable return ha-been made by the Moderator, a Committee was appoint-to draw up an answer to his Majesty's most gracious letter.
The same Committee were also appointed to draw up a dutiful loyal address to his Majesty, congratulating him on the increase of the Royal family, by the birth of another Prince, the recovery of her Majesty from a late dangerous indisposition.
The Assembly spent the most part of yesterday in prayer, then appointed the Rev. Mr Douglas, at Galahiel, to preach before his Grace the Commissioner to-morrow forenoon, and the Rev. Mr Bonar, at Glasgow, in the af-noon. The Rev. Mr Morison, at Canisby, Sunday se'en-ing, in the forenoon, and the Rev. Mr Burn, at Minto, in the afternoon.
This day, the Committee, whom the General Assembly appointed to draw up an answer to his Majesty's letter, and likewise a loyal and dutiful address on the increase of the Royal family, reported the same to the House, which being read over, paragraph by paragraph, were unanimously approved of, signed by the Moderator. His Grace, the High Commissioner, promised to transmit them immediately to his Majesty.
Mrs Siddons, from the Theatre-Royal, Drury-Lane, arried here on Wednesday evening. The number of people who went for tickets at the Box-office of the Theatre, this morning, in order to secure places to see this celebrated Actress perform the part of Belvidera this night, was truly astonishing.
It was the demand, indeed, that the Manager was under necessity of putting a stop to the sale of tickets, as many hundreds would have been purchased more than the house could contain. Though the play was not to begin till seven o'clock, an immense crowd was standing at the outside of the house by four o'clock, ready to rush in at the first opening of the doors, at six o'clock in the evening.
Died at his house in Canisby, on the 14th inst, John Sur-land of Swinzie, Esq; greatly regretted by his friends and acquaintances.
Died at Belfield, near Copar Fife, the 18th current, Miss Morison, youngest daughter of James Morison of Naugh-
ton, Esq;

Wednesday, Donald Macdonald and John Stewart were committed to the tolbooth of this city, by warrant of the Sheriff, accused of refitting some stolen goods from one Angus, present prisoner in the tolbooth) who is suspected of having trafficked said goods from a shop in Leith, as mentioned in our Thursday, a pilot-boat with two sailors, going out from Leith to a ship in the Roads, (the wind blowing fresh, and trying too much fail) was overfet. The sailors were fortunately saved by the activity of the crew of his Majesty's frigate the Poole.

arrived at Virginia.
The Mary, Hartwell, and Nancy, Drummond, from Clyde, arrived at New York.
The Jenny, Tarbert, from Clyde, at Grenada.
The Glasgow Packet, Patrick, from Virginia, is arrived at Leith.
Last Saturday evening, a house in Gibson's Close, Glasgow, broke into, and a considerable quantity of women's clothes stolen off. Jean Lindsay, tried before the Circuit Court on Friday last, is suspected of the above theft, and a warrant is issued for apprehending her. (See our last.)
On Tuesday, a young man, having gone into the river to bathe, was unfortunately drowned. His body was fished in a net early on Wednesday morning, by the people going for salmon.
Since the 28th ult. thirty-one vessels, with grain, flour, and other goods, and fourteen with goods, have arrived at the west end of Canal.
Last week, the ship Industry, from Newcastle, was drove off Orford Beach, in a violent gale of wind, but was got off without any material damage. Three other brigs were drove there at the same place, and all hands on board excepting one man were drowned.
Wednesday last, at Alnwick fair, there was a large shew of cattle, which fold rather low. The shew of horses was but a poor one. Good ones fold high.
Extract of a letter from Cork, May 13.
Two travelling nine-pounders, and two sixes, are now being completed for the Cork Independent Artillery, whose regiment is to be, "Life with Freedom, or Death with Slaves."
The master-builders of this city intend immediately to enact resolutions, not to purchase any iron-work but the machines of this country, from the first day of January next; further, that they will not buy any goods or materials of foreign origin, that will, from said day, import any English merchandise, of any sort whatsoever.
The coachmakers intend entering into resolutions not to repair or alter any English carriage that may be landed or imported here, from the day of the date of said resolutions, during the continuance of the non-importation agreement.
It has been observed, that many who begin the study of the Greek language in the University, are, for want of means to enable them to it in summer, apt, in some measure, to relinquish it, and lose much of what they have already attained; so that their return to the University, they have often a great deal of their former labour to resume. This greatly retards their progress in learning the language, which an uninterrupted application would tend much to facilitate. Mr T. MILL, who has been, for some time, in the practice of teaching the learned languages, has now now begun a Greek Class for the Summer term, and adopted the same mode of teaching that is practised in the University. He will also begin another Class for the benefit of those who wish to be instructed in the principles of the language.—Fee, One Guinea a quarter.—Any Gentlemen, who desire to favour him with attendance, will please inquire, Good's Land, College Wynd.
